

1930?

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE
FREDERICKSBURG, VIRGINIA

State Teachers College

A full four year college, member of the American Association of Teachers Colleges.

In addition to offering the usual courses found in other Teachers Colleges, this institution makes a specialty of Commercial Education, Physical Education, Music, and Home Economics, and grants the Bachelor of Science Degree in all these fields.

State Teachers College
Fredericksburg, Virginia

LOOKING NORTH FROM MONROE HALL

*"Here aged trees cathedral walks compose
And mount the hill in venerable rows."*

DRIVEWAY THROUGH THE COLLEGE GROVE

SECTION OF THE CAMPUS NEAR THE OPEN AIR THEATRE

SOME OF THE NATIVE TREES THAT MAKE FOR BEAUTY ON THE HILL-TOP

FRANCIS WILLARD HALL, VIRGINIA HALL, CHANDLER HALL, AND OTHER BUILDINGS IN THE DISTANCE

SECTION OF THE NORTH CAMPUS WITH A GIANT OAK ON ITS SLOPE

BETTY LEWIS HALL

CAMPUS SCENES IN DETAIL

SECTION OF SWIMMING POOL

THE OPEN AIR THEATRE

Location of The College

THE College Campus, comprising sixty-five acres, is situated on the famous Marye's Heights, overlooking the city of Fredericksburg, and commanding a panoramic view never to be forgotten. The position of the buildings gives them a commanding appearance, bringing out in strong relief the massive beauty of their architecture. In the rear of the Campus deep wooded ravines, threaded by crystal streams, add a feature of picturesqueness to the College grounds. Beautiful groves, lovely valleys, and vine-clad slopes conspire to make it one of the most delightful and alluring campuses in the South.

This College is strategically and ideally located in the heart of what might justly be called the most historic section of America, accessible to Washington, Richmond, University of Virginia, Alexandria, Mount Vernon, Wakefield, and numerous other points of interest and note. On the heights now occupied by the Campus was fought one of the bloodiest battles of the Civil War.

Fredericksburg and vicinity have been prominently associated with every important period of American history from the earliest colonial days until the present. Here was the boyhood home of George Washington and the home and burial place of his mother. Fredericksburg was also the home of Fielding Lewis, Hugh Mercer, Paul Jones, James Monroe, Matthew Fontaine Maury, and many other famous characters too numerous to mention.

Here the old and the new are happily blended into a progressive and interesting community of approximately 10,000 people. The city is dotted by historic shrines and crowned with a halo of golden memories capable of inspiring all who enter its gates.

Its situation in both the Piedmont and the Tidewater sections of the State is at the head of the navigable Tidewater; its winters are short and rather mild, and its summers are seldom subject to extreme heat, while the nights have the saving grace of coolness.

The Richmond, Fredericksburg, and Potomac Railroad, through its excellent passenger service, extends to Fredericksburg the enormous facilities of its connections—the Pennsylvania Railroad, Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, Seaboard Air Line, and Southern Railway, while the Virginia Central Railroad connects at Orange with the Southern and the Chesapeake & Ohio.

Fredericksburg is on the great National Highway from Quebec to Miami, known as U. S. Route No. 1, and the improved State roads center in Fredericksburg, connecting it with the North, South, East, and West.

Twenty-nine passenger trains per day and forty-two bus lines, regulated by the State Corporation Commission, render Fredericksburg one of the most accessible cities in the State, not even surpassed in this respect by the Capital city of Richmond.

